
Abstract
Professional certification is a term heard frequently in the nephrology setting; however, other terms, such as licensure and competency, are often confused with certification. This article provides a basic discussion of each of these terms, and then explores the options for certification currently available that are specific to nephrology caregivers.